belay

FOR PARENTS & CAREGIVERS

Start the conversation.

Send to your school nurse or principal.

A starting point for your email

Copy and paste this note, or make it your own.

> Subject: Food allergy safety at [School]
>
> Hi [Name], I've been thinking about how we keep kids with serious food allergies safe at school. Do we have epinephrine on hand that a staff member could give right away if a child needed it?
>
> I came across Belay and love what they're doing. I know other schools have started doing this, and I'd love for our school to have that same level of safety for our kids.
>
> I've attached some information about Belay. When can we connect to talk about bringing this to our school?
>
> Thank you, [Your name]

Attach: Belay's Introduction for Schools brochure.

Questions you can ask

01 Where is epinephrine kept, including after hours?

02 Who is trained to give it, including substitute staff?

03 If a child has a severe allergic reaction away from the nurse's office, can staff get epinephrine to them immediately?

Contact: Abby Herzig | abby.herzig@webelay.com